for his text the words. The sing is the control God," from the Book of Wisdom. He spoke in German and said in part:

The sight of the coffins before us fills to the full our cup of sorrow. Death appeared to those dear little ones in an awful form; for in one moment they were full of joy and happiness, and in another they were notable but brused and lifeless clay. In our misfortune, however, there is one consonation: no one is to biame for the accident. There has been some unthanking talk of blame; but I protest against accusations that are unjust, and against the violent pascion that would put blame upon innocent ones. All of us are sad; everything about us is gloomy, and our hearts are filled with melancholy, but we are not left alone to sorrow and pain. If I were speaking as a Christian to Christian fathers and mothers, and your rath in Christ strengthons you in your arials. Faith in the providence of God, although we may not understand His workings, consoles us. Your caldren were, taken away in their innocence, taken away from temptation and carried out of a wicked world to live in the presence of God. Rejoice, therefore, ye fathers and mothers, because of your children's innocence. They are not dead, but they live forever, and they await you on the other side, where you shall be united with them lorever and ever.

EXAMINER RILEY'S REPORT.

Examiner John Kiley, of the Bureau of Buildings, went to the house of Inspector Esterbrook yesterday and presented the written report which he bad been directed to make regarding the school building. He stated that he was in the building a few months ago and examined the walls, foundations and starways to see if they were safe. Everything about the building appeared to be in good repair, and he saw nothing which in his judgment called for a special report. Mr. Esterbrook sairl yesterday that Kiley's judgment was at fauit. He thought the man was energetic and faithful in the performance of his duty, but he had not recognized the dangerous features of the building. "The trouble is," Mr. Esterbrook said, "that it is about impossible to procure the services of men who are in every way competent to be examiners of buildings. The examiners ongat to be able to draw a plan of any building, to estimate the strength of materials, and above all to te unmoved by whatever the owners of buildings may say in defence of dangerous parts. They ought to be able to creognize the dangerous features of a house, and to represent them clearly and truthfully so that the head of the bureau could pass correct judgment on them. We need more examiners, and some of them must be trained in the inspection of public buildings."

When asked what measures be intended to take regarding the school-building, Mr. Esterbrook said that he would give directions for alterations immediately.

Committee was furnishing fuel, provisions, etc., daily to more than 4,000 persons. R. A. Athey, Mayor of Covington, Ky., telegraphed that he had consulted with William H. Horton, Mayor of Newport, and that each had agreed to draw on the committee for $750. Charles D. Jacobs, Mayor of Louisville, sent thanks in the name of the citizens for the munificent gifts to the sufferers by the flood. He added that should necessity require he would inform the committee. W. E. Ingalls, chairman of the Cincinnait Relief Fund, and V. T. Mallott, treasurer of the Indianapolis kelief Committee, returned thanks for the aid already given. The latter said that he would draw on the committee for $4,000.

In answer to a private inquiry as to whether the statements that no more money was needed were not incorrect, Mayor Roberts, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., sent the following dispated Wednesay:

"Your message received. Cincinnait Relief Committee has not furnished us any money. Cash contributions from private citizens there $800, neluding $500 through M. Halstead, from New-York. More than two hundred dwellings are destroyed; about ten business houses wrecked; 1,500 people are houndess, and many hundred besides cannot reach their homes for days. Three hundred thousand dollars will not cover our loss. Telegraphed facts last night to Theodore Husted, Chairman Produce Exchange, New-York. We feel under the greatest obligations to you for the interest you have taken in our welfare."

The annual dinner of the Washington Heights

the head of the room were Mayor Edson, Judge Noah Davis, John B. Haskin, R. B. Kımball, the Rev. Dr. D. B. Payson, the Rev.
G. H. Payson and Montague Marks.
Among those at the other tables were Judges Van

Erastus Brooks, the Rev. Dr. S. D. Burchard, Eugene Pomeroy, Professor Weston Jenkins, W. R.
Farrell, A. L. Souland, Martin B. Brown, David Yuengling, George M. Beebe, Joseph Keppler, Dr.
C. M. Leary, Z. L. Halpin, Charles H. Davton and
M. T. Dalv. A bronze bust of Washington, by M. J.
Power, lent by Z. L. Halpin, stood at the shead of the table, and the walls were decorated with flags and the coats of arms of the States. After a few introductory remarks by the president a part of Washington's Farewell Address was read by Professor Weston Jenkins, the scoretary of the club. Judge Noah Davis in responding to the toast of "The Day We Celebrate," gave a review of the most important incidents of the life of General Washington. He read his address from manuscript and the club passed a resolution to have the address printed. Erastus Brooks was called upon to respond to the toast of "The State of New-York."

Mayor Edson, in responding to the toast of "The City of New-York," spoke briefly of the shaid ments he had proposed to the city charter. He said in part:

The introduction of self-government in this city dates back to October 17, 1683, which is a memorable day in the history of the city. On that day the representatives of the freeholders met and the General Assembly of seventeen members passed four-teen acts. That was the beginning of home rule in this city. The representative government was granted by the owner of the province because he thought it would pay. The city went through various struggles to regain home rule until it was again established in 1783. Since that time the city has permitted its government to become cumbrous until the principle of home rule is almost forgetion. The city has spermitted its government to become cumbrous until the principle of home rule is almost forgetion. The city has grown until in the number of its lababitants and its wealth it is like a State. Why should we not have a system, of government simple, responsible, and complete, as independent of the State Government as the States are of the National Government! The three departments—the executive, legislative and judicial—should be maintained. The powers of the legislative denartment should be enlarged. The amendments that I have proposed and sent to the Legislature are in the direction of these principles. They are intended to embody the simple principle that the true measure of responsibility is power. Power should be controlled by immediate responsibility to the people. It remains to be seen whether we will regain the power of home rule for which we struggled over a century also so that when on the 25th of November next we celebrate at the same time Evacuation Day and the centennial and bi-centennial for the establishment of tree government in this city, we may also be able to congratulate ourselves on having anow obtained the power of home rule.

Inquiries have been made of THE TRIBUNE as to the reason for not keeping open after the hour of 6 p. m. the windows at the Post Office for the sale of stamps in quantities over the value of one dollar. Postmaster Pearson said yesterday that it was scarcely safe to keep at the night windows so large a quantity of stamps as would be necessary if there were no restrictionen the amount to be purchased. Firms and individuals having a large correspondence could easily purchase their stamps in the daytime, and the Department preferred to have them do so. It was not intended that the restriction on might purchases should be so strict as to prevent absolutely any one from buying a somewhat larger quantity when needed. Special arrangements could be made at any time at the Post Office by persons in the habit of buying large quantities of stamps who could not visit the office in the daytime. IN PURSUIT OF A SMALL-POX PATIENT, Captain Aliaire, of the Eldridge Street Police, yesterday sent word to the Health Department that there was a small-pox patient in the lodging-house at No. 106 Essex-st. A sanitary inspector went to the house, but he was told that no person had been sick there. Some of the occupants of upper stories of the building, however, stated that a sick man had been removed from the basement on Wednesday night. There are twenty beds for lodgers in the basement of the building. The inspector gave orders to have the house fumigated. He also began a search for the sick lodger.

The demand for summer houses on Long Island was never known to be so brisk before at this time of the year. At Far Rockaway nearly every cottage has been engaged. E. S. Stokes, of the Hoftman House, said to a TRIBUNE reporter yesterday that all statements to the effect that negotiations of any kind had been closed whereby the Madison Square Garden had passed into his control were premature.

"I have simply the refusal of the property," he added, "and I cannot tell for a week or so yet whether or not anything will come of the matter at all. Reports have connected Mackey's name with the scheme, but he knows nothing whatever about it."

YAPHANK.—James W. Smith seeks to enjoin the Long Island Railroad Company from destroying his timber. He says that the company acquired fifty-seven acres of his land under the right of eminent domain, alleging that it was wanted for railroad purposes. He also wants to recover the value of the timber already cut, and the appointment of appraisers to assess the damages.

A MYSTERY AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS.

Contrary to the usual custom, two of Inspector Byrnes's detectives have been for for y-eight hours on watch in the long hall on the first floor of Police Headquarters which rans clear through the building from Mu berry-st. to Mott-st. The detectives loiter about the halls carelessly, but no one who is a stranger to them enters the building without being carefully scrutinized. The watch at the Mott-st, entrance is apparently more vigilantly kept than that at the other end. The Mott-st, door has always been locked at night heretofore, and the light turned off. The door, apparently, is still kept locked, but a light is burning all night to aid the detectives in their lone's vigils. Inspector Byrnes, when asked what his officers were doing there, replied with a naive smile that he didn't know that there were any detectives in the hall. One of the employes of the building said that some of the departments were being investigated.

On one side of the Mott-st, entrance are the offices of the sanitary Squad and the Vaccination Burreau. On the other is the room of he property clerk, Charles A. St. John. Part of the revenue of the Pension Fund, which the Commissioners of Accounts are now investigating, is derived from the sale of undiamed property, of which Mr. St. John has charge. That official has not been at Police Headquarters for two days, it being alleged that he is sick. Yesterday Charles Waterman, who has been employed as a doorman at the thouse of Detention, was placed in charge of his room.
